

Aloha Down Under Webinars For Agents

Agents who missed out on Aloha Down Under last week can now get access to the presentations given by the visiting representatives--and there's a trip for two to Hawaii with Hawaiian Airlines up for grabs.

Prevu recorded each of the more than 20 representatives of hotels, tours, activities and tourism offices in Hawai'i that presented to Kiwi agents at the Aloha Down Under event in Auckland last week. The videos are uploaded on the Prevu website, and agents who watch them can take a quiz to be in to win the Hawaii prize.

To check out the presentations and complete the quiz, see prevutrade.tv/destination/Hawaii/webinars/

Jack Johnson 2nd Show

Tickets to Jack Johnson's show at his hometown of Waikiki sold out quickly last week, so he's announced a second show on 02 Aug. Tickets go on sale to Hawai'i residents first on 17 May followed by a general sale on 18 May, with prices from USD35. See ticketmaster.com

For Basketball Nuts

Turtle Bay Preservation

The Hawai'i Government has agreed to fund the preservation of more than 600 acres of land around Turtle Bay Resort, protecting the land and coastlines from development. It includes the preservation of privately maintained but publicly available coastal hiking trails.

"The result will keep the country, country. It will protect pristine coastlines from development. It will provide open space and access for everyone," says Governor Neil Abercrombie.

Waikiki Lecture Series

Waikiki Aquarium is to host a series of distinguished lectures over the coming months in celebration of the facility's 110th birthday. There will be a range of thought-provoking lectures discussing major marine conservation issues. The first, Sea Level on the Rise on 22 May, will be delivered by Dr Chip Fletcher who aquarium director Dr Andrew Rossiter says is globally recognised for his research on the subject. Cost is USD10 pp. See waikikiaquarium.org for additional dates, topics and venues.
